

Women Support Okinawa Declaration

Over the past few years, we have been serving as the base of knowledge in the region and have devoted ourselves to a purpose of creating an environment that provides an opportunity for each researcher to fully display their individual talents and competence. To be able to realize an educational, research, and occupational environment where a diverse group of people, including female researchers, work together in tandem, is something a global society seeks to achieve and serves as an indicator of regional globalization. Having recognized the importance of these global and local agendas, we will increase our efforts to foster diversity in organizations and society in our region. With a firm commitment to contributing to the development of international society and regional globalization by leveraging the produced knowledge from local research and educational practice, we proclaim our continuous engagement in providing support and training to female researchers, and these efforts will be made while ensuring a more integrated perspective and a clear vision for the future of women in research.
